

Greed, Incorporated

This is another clever, deep, business game from the Spotter team. Players are executives in corporations with the player who's CEO running things. It's easy enough to make a profit, but can they make more than last year? And keep doing this year after year?

However, getting fired is the key to the game. Sacked executives get a payoff from the company, while the next in line takes over as CEO. Players can use their payoffs to start new companies. Or they can buy themselves the latest executive toy (ocean-going yacht? Learjet?). The winner is the player with the most toys!

Greed, Incorporated is clearly a game for our times.
