

Such a Thing

It's made of cork, could be used to catch mice and is talked about at parties. Is there Such a Thing?

The long awaited release of Such a Thing is finally here. This great card game has been a big hit in its native Germany (where it's called Ein solches Ding) and is now available in English. The basic idea is that players need to think of something that is described by all cards in play.

Players add one card to the existing list of qualities in order to empty their hand before their opponents. With each new card, they must think of a new thing that fits all the cards.

It has hair, but no teeth, needs fuel and is essentially flat. There's no way there is Such a Thing!

The first player to empty their hand and name Such a Thing wins the game.

- Designed by Urs Hostettler
- For 2-10 players, aged 10+
- Playing Time 30 minutes
- RRP £17.00 (inc VAT)
- Trade price £8.87 (ex-VAT)